

ALAN J. LIFTIN, MD, PC

Dr. Alan J. Liftin is a highly trained dermatologist who is unique among his peers. He is triple board-certified in the fields of dermatology, dermatopathology (the microscopic study of the skin) and anatomic pathology, and his extensive knowledge allows him to help patients achieve their optimum results.

“My training has given me an in-depth understanding of facial anatomy which enables me to enhance a person’s appearance, rather than change it. I work with the most innovative products and techniques to rejuvenate one’s appearance and bring it back to what it should look like rather than augment the appearance beyond who the person is,” he explains. “I combine the science and art of cosmetic dermatology to give my patients the best possible results.”

Dr. Liftin’s practice is a blend of cosmetic, medical and surgical dermatology. In addition to being an expert in facial aesthetics and cosmetic dermatology, he is a leader in skin cancer surgery. His interests include the non-invasive, non-surgical approach to facial aesthetics and body rejuvenation.

“Not only do I have the opportunity to rejuvenate the way patients look, I have the privilege to help them look like their best self and, as a result, make them feel better and more confident,” he says.

His philosophy, anchored to technical expertise that allows him to take an individualized and customized approach to patient care, has made Dr. Liftin one of the top dermatologists in the region.

“I see myself not just as a physician treating a patient’s skin care needs, but as a trusted partner in helping each patient feel and look their most vital self,” he explains. “I can help each patient seek not ideal beauty but their own ideal beauty.”

Dr. Liftin received his medical degree from Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai and completed his residency in dermatology and a fellowship in dermatopathology at The Mount Sinai Hospital and The Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania.
